

Excerpt from The Direct Ancestry of the Late Jacob Wendell, of Portsmouth, New Hampshire: With a Prefatory Sketch of the Early Dutch Settlement of the Province of New Netherland, 1614-1664 The descendant of any of those early families who settled along the banks of the Hudson under the gentle rule of Holland, recurring with honest pride to more than two centuries of honorable lineage, realizes his indebtedness to past generations. And as he searches their annals, inscribed in quaint netherland-dutch, in the very curious and interesting Notarial Papers, he adequately appreciates the services rendered to his kinsmen by Professor Jonathan Pearson, of Union College. The laborious and studious researches of this gentleman among the Dutch manuscripts at Albany, and the result of years of patient investigation, are exhibited in his valuable contributions for the genealogies of the First Settlers of that ancient borough. Of the material aid furnished by these the author has gladly availed him self, and additionally of the courtesy of Professor Pearson, who has kindly allowed the proof sheets of this pamphlet to receive his examination and approval.
